PREFACE

(From the 'An Etymological Dictionary of Bishnupriya Manipuri)

The Bishnupriya Manipuri language has developed from the eastern form of Middle Indo-Aryan and bears a sisterly relation to Assamese, Bengali and Oriya. Accordingly, it is quite distinct from Meitei (Manipuri) which belongs to the Tibeto Burman group of languages. But though different in origin, Bishnupriya and Meitei are very close to each other, since the former has incorporated numerous words into its vocabulary from the latter.

Bishnupriya Manipuri is spoken by approximately one lakh and a half of people living in parts of Assam, Tripura, Manipur and Bangladesh. Though not known abroad, this language is of great importance for the study of the linguistic history of India because of the fact that it can help us explain some hitherto unexplained elements not only of its cognate languages (i.e., Assamese, Bengali and Oriya) but also of Meitei where of a great number of old forms has been retained in this language. But few scholars have shown interest in the study of this language, and excepting a few pages by G. A. Grierson (in The Linguistic Survey of India) and a few references here and there by Prof. S. K. Chatterji (in The Origin and Development of the Bengali Language) no attempt has been made to deal with its salient traits.

However, the upsurge in the Bishnupriya Manipuri speaking people during the last two decades sustained my interest in the study of this language. I visited every village of these people within Cachar, Karimganj, Tripura and Manipur, studied dialectal differences and collected the vocabulary of this language. With all this material, I worked out a thesis which was approved for the Ph.D. degree by the Jadavpur University in 1968. This thesis is a historical and descriptive grammar of Bishnnupriya Manipuri, in which I have dealt with almost all the aspects of this language, namely, its phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics etc. and have tried to bring out and explain all the peculiarities of this language. This thesis in its revised form has been published under the title The Bishnupriya Manipuri Language by the Firma KLM of Calcutta.

After working out the thesis, I collected more words of this language from its speakers through the constant labour of six years. And, for finding out the etymological explanations of those words, I made a comparative study of the corresponding and cognate forms found in languages like Bengali, also consulted persons of these language groups. In all, I collected about 30,000 words of BPM, and with them I prepared an etymological dictionary of this language. In the present work, I have entered only about 10,000 words of philological interest selected out of the original dictionary. In this work, I have endeavoured to give etymological explanations to almost all the words entered. There are words which are commonly used in Bishnupriya Manipuri and its cognate languages, but they have not yet been explained by others. In the present work, I have tried to explain a number of such words also. The most remarkable feature of the present work is that in it I have tried to give etymological explanations to about 4,000 words borrowed from Meitei or formed by the combination of Meitei and OIA elements.

It is to be noted here that the Meitei language may be divided into three stages, namely Old Meitei (prevalent roughly from the 15th to the 17th centuries A.D., Middle Meitei (prevalent roughly in the 18th and the 19th centuries), and New Meitei/prevalent in the 20th century). Now, the Bishnupriyas migrated from Manipur during the first part of the 19th century. And the Meitei words found in BPM were borrowed from the Meitei of that period, i.e., from Middle Meitei, and not from New Meitei in which most of the words of Middle Meitei, have undergone a great change. Accordingly, I have shown the derivation of the said BPM words of Meitei origin from the forms of Middle Meitei and not of New Meitei.

While explaining the words of Meitei origin, I have made a comparative study of the corresponding words of the Naga and the Lushei languages. I must, however, admit that my study of the Naga elements is not quite accurate and complete, for, first, I could not do that much of field-work as was required for the study, and secondly, works dealing in detail with the vocabulary of the Naga languages were not available during the period of my research. Accordingly, it has been difficult for me to say accurately to which particular dialect of Naga a particular word belongs. I have, therefore, used the common term Naga to denote the words of all the Naga dialects. I am, of course, sure that most of the words denoted as Naga in this work belong to the Rongmai dialect, as the persons with whom I consulted the words were mostly the speakers of Rongmai Naga. As regards the Perso-Arabic elements of BPM also, I must confess that I could not give the proper attention to distinguish between the Persian and the Arabic words, in the absence of sufficient scope for study during my research.

In this work, I have followed the principles adopted by Prof. Sukumar

Sen in his An Etymological Dictionary of Bengali. I was also personally guided by him in preparing this work. I am thus indebted to Prof. Sen. I have also utilised the materials I gathered from Prof. S.K. Chatterji during my research for the Ph. D. degree. I am thus obliged to Prof. Chatterji during my research for the Ph.D. degree. I am thus obliged to Prof. Chatterji also Further, I am thankful to Prof. R.K. Surendrajii. Singh of Imphal who helped me explain the Meiter words incorporated into BPM, to Prof. H. Atam of Cachar College, Silchar, who helped me find out the sources of the Perso-Arabic words taken into BPM, to Sti Brajadhan Sharma of Nakphul Colony Tripura, who helped me learn the Madai Gang dialect of BPM, and to Sri Raning Paw of Cachar College, Silchar, who helped me find out the Naga forms corresponding to the Meiter words occurring in BPM.

The original dictionary of BPM was completed before 1974, Since then I approached different organisations both of the Centre and the State to subside the publication of the work, but got no favourable response from any corner At last, Sri S K. Bhattacharya of the Punthi Pustak, Calcuttatook the bold decision to publish the work. But, for some practical reasons. I had to reduce the size of the work to a great extent. While doing so, I have of course, omitted only the Sanskrit and English words, retaining all other words of philological interest. However, to give the readers some dea about the Sanskrit words occurring in BPM, I have appended a list of such words of common use.

INTRODUCTION

I. Meitei (Manipuri) and Bishnupriya Manipuri

From a linguistic point of view, the Manipuris are divided into two groups namely, the Meiters and the Bis inupriyas. The language of the Meiters sknown as Meiter of Manipuri, it belongs to the Tibeto-Burman group of anguages and is akin to Naga and Lushe. The language of the Bishnupriyas on the other hand, is known as Bishnupriya Manipuri (BPM), it be ongs to the Indo-Aryan group of languages and is counate with Assamese, Bengali and Oriya. The term 'Meiter' is derived most probably from multipeople teorip Burmese main maniputation the Ial people, and the term Bishnupriya', from Bishnupur mame of a place in Manipur viva a suffux coming from Sanskrit'ika' and meaning 'relating to'.

It is said that the Bishnupriya Manipuris were followers of the Visnucult from very ancient times. They istalled the image of Lord V snu at a place in Manipur which was later known as Bishnupur Gradually, this Bishnupur became the cultural centre of these people, because of which they were called the Bishnupuriyas or the inhabitants of Bishnupur, and Bishnupriya is a contracted form of the term Bishnupuriya. This tradition is in narmony with the name 'Bishnupuriya Manipur, recorded by GA Grierson.

2. Geographical Distribution of BPM

Formerly, BPM was spoken by the people living in the surroundings of the lake Loktag in Manipur. The principal localities where this language was spoken are now known as Khangabok. Heirok, Bishnupur, Ningthaukhong and other places. But the B shnupriyas of these localities have now adopted Meiter as their mother tengue, they neither speak nor understand BPM. At present, BPM has been retained by those Bishnupriyas who left Manipur and took shelter in Assam, Iripura and Sylhet during the first part of the 18th century. The number of the speakers of this language according to a calculation made by the present author, is approximately one lakh in India and fifty thousand in Bangladesh.

3. Dialects of BPM:

BPM has two dialects, namely, Rajar Gang (King's Village) and Madai Gang (Queen's Village). Unlike the dialects of other Linguages, these dialects are not confired to distinct geographical areas rather they exist were confined to well-defined territories. The Madar Gang dialect was spoken probably in the Khangabok-Heirok area, and the Rajar Gang dialect, in the Bishnupur-Nigthaukhong area. From the view point of phonenes, Madar Gang is more akin to Assamese and Melter, Rajar Gang, to Bangal In respect of vocabulary, Madar Gang is closer to Meiter, Raja Gang to Bengali and Assamese. Morpho ogical differences between the two dialects are negligible.

4. Vocabulary of BPM

The present writer has collected about 30,000 words of BPM a. J has compiled a comprehensive dictionary of this language. Of these 30,000 words, tatsamas (OIA) number apprex 10,000, semi-tatsamas apprex 1,300 tad phayas (i.e., words derived from OIA) found in other languages such as, Hind., Bengoli, Assamese and others, approx 8,000, tad phayas pecunian to BPM, approx 2,000, Meiter, approx 3,500. Perso-Arabic, approx 2,000. English, approx 700, Hybrid, approx 1,000, Desi and others, approx 1,500 and words of obscure or gin, approx 1,300. The most remarkable words of BPM are some hybrid words which are formed by the combination of words derived from OIA and Meiter.

5. Source of BPM:

BPM has developed from the Magadhi Prakrta and ranks with Bengali, Oriya and Assamese This is clear from the face that it has retained all the distinctive features of Magadhi. Moreover, prompt instand the conjugational and declensional endings are the most stable elements of a language, they undergo change very slowly. And a study of the pronouns the conjugational and declensional endings of BPM shows that most of these forms are cerived from the Magadhi Prakrta and are same as or closely related to, those of Bengali, Oriya and Assamese which are of Magadhi origin.

6. BPM as an Independent Language:

Since BPM shares some important characteristics with Assamese and Bengali, some scho ars are of the view that BPM is a dialect of Assamese or Bengali and that it is not an independent language. But this view is not tenable BPM shares the said characteristics not because it is a dialect of Assamese or Bengali but because it has originated from the same source.

- (1 c., Mågadhl Pråkrta) from which Assamese and Bengali also have developed In fact, BPM has some remarkable peculiarities which are found neither in Assamese nor in Bengali. The special features of BPM which distinguish it from Assamese and Bengali are as follows.
- (a) The verbal forms in BPM vary in accrdance with the number and gender of the subject. (b) BPM has a few case-endings and a number of affixes peculiar to itself (c) BPM has developed a complete t-form for the future tense. (d) BPM has got a number of distinctive pronominal forms. (e) In BPM, real infinitives do not occur, the sense of infinitive is carried by verbal nouns. (f) The vocabulary of BPM includes more than 8,000 words which occur neither in Assamese nor in Bengali. Further, as said above, BPM has two dialects from a long time past. All this goes to say that BPM has certainly the status of an independent language. And G.A. Grierson has justly remarked that this language widely differs from both Assamese and Bengali.

7. Formation of BPM in Manipur:

As a corollary to the view that BPM is a dialect of Assamese or Bengali, this held by some scholars that BPM is not a native speech of Manipur and that it has come to Manipur from Assam or Bengal. This is also a misconception. As said above, BPM betrays some peculiar characteristics which are found neither in Assamese nor in Bengali. A language with these distinctive features did never exist outside Manipur before it flourished in the land. In other words, BPM was formed in the very land of Manipur and nowhere else.

Some are, again, of the view that BPM was never sopken in Manipur and that it is a product of those Meitel-speakers who left Maripur and took sielter in Assam. Tripura and sylhet in the first part of the nineteenth century. But this view is too ho low to deserve any serious consideration. Firstly, historical works written by both the European and the Indian scholars bear irrefutable testimonies to the existence of BPM in Manipur before this century. The Linguistic survey of India by G.A. Grierson, Ethnology of Benzal by Daiten, An Account of the Valley of Munnipore by Major Mc Callak, Khamal Purāna by Navakhendra and many other works may be referred to in this connection. Secondly, there are about 50,000 people in an in the valley of Manipur, who speak Meiter but are known as the inshnupriyas. Their facial teatures, complexion etc. are quite similar to the Bishnupriyas living outside Man pur And a very strong tradition prevalent in Manipur itself makes it doubt ess that these people used to speak BPM up to the first few years of 20th century. I hirdly, it is not possible for the speakers of a T beto - Burman (Meiter, language to develop an Aryan tongue, specially, with such clear pronunciation as the Bishnupriyas have Fourthly, this theory cannot explain how a uniform language could be produced by the different groups of these people taking shelter in distant places in distinct surroundings outside Manipur

8. Earliest Existence of BPM in Manipur:

Works of European scholars referred to above bear testimonies to the existence of BPM in Manipur during the first half of the 19th centure. The Khumal Parana of Navakhendra refers to the existence of this language in Manipur during the reign of Garib Nawaj, i.e. in the middle of the 18th century. By analysing the language of the Rain-Invoking Seng-the oldest fo.k song of BPM-and the culture revealed in it, the present writer has come to the conclusion that it was composed, in a 1 probability, in the 16th century.* Again, it is clear from this song of BPM that time incorporated numerous Melter words into its stock. This firstner goes to say that the speakers of BPM lived with the Meiters for a considerable period of time before the composition of the song And, from a linguistic analysis, it is seen that most of the morphological elements of BPM agree with those of the caastern group of Indo-Aryan that was prevalent during the 13th and the 14th centuries. It can, therefore, well be surmised that BPM was separated from the eastern group of Indo-Aryan during the formative period of the New Indo-Aryan language or sometime later, and developed its distinctive features in Man pur during the period from the 13th to the 15th century A.D.

Of course, from the beginning of the Christian era, waves of Indo Aryan speaking people enterd Manipur from time to time, and the anguages of those people might have contributed some elements to the formation of BPM.

9. Stages of BPM:

The history of BPM may broad y be divided into three stages namely. Old, Middle and new (i, Old BMP was prevalent between the 13th and the 16th centuries. In this time, the Bishnupr yas came in close contact with the Meiters, as a result of which BPM became replate with Mener.

(ii) Middle BPM means that form of BPM which existed in the .7th and the 18th centuries. During this period a few groups of Indo-Aryan speaking people entered Manipur, who were absorved into the Bishnapriya society. In consequence, numerous Indo-Aryan words were incorporated into BPM and the influence of Melter on it became a bit weaker. (ii) New BPM denotes that form of BPM which is in existence from the 19th century onwards. Towards the beginning of the 19th century, the B. hnupriyas left Manipur and took shelter in Assam, Tipura and Sylhet, where they come in centact with the Indo-Aryan speaking people. As a result. BPM was no more influenced by Melter, and numerous 3PM words of Meite. origin began to be replaced by Indo-Aryan words. This process is still going on

FOREWORD

In the development of a language, its made rand comprehensive determary is a milestone in itself - a historic stude. The Bishnupriya Marpuri to English Dictionary compiled by Dr Kali Priesad Sinna M.A., Ph. D. D. Liti, is such an august work of indominal lecentage and determination. The detromay has been published by the Bishnupriya Manipur. Schitza Salah, I feel privileged to have the hindur of writing the for word note of this dictionary.

His research work made Dr. Sinna treac almost all Bisar apriya Manapah speech community-anabated villages in Assam, frapara and Manipur He delved deep into phonology morph least, sentax, sentantics and class of the Bishatoria a Manipun language However, pregmatic and lisecu se were out cf scopy of his study. Dr. Sin ta's field work yielded 30,000 Bishnaphwa Manipari words (lex cons) therough y analysed and orderly organized in the form of a comprehensive dictionary. His names capt was leady way back in 1974 but not published. He picked but accum, 10,000 non-Sanskrit words of etymological interest from his conlected lexicon and conquied an erymological dictionary. An Etymological Dictionary of Bishnaphia a Manipuri. It was partished in 1986 by Partan Pastas. Calcada. This work o evaled the bishnaphy a Manipural language, to be jest.

to only Bengali to have an civing gical dictionary. An Etymologica, Dictionally of Bengan of Dr. Sukumar Ser was published by Eastern Publisher, 1971. These three masterworks of Dr. Sinna - (1) Bish supray: Marupur. A Descriptive Sketch, (2) The Bishnupriya Munipuri Language and (3) An Etymological Dictionary of Bishnapaya Manipan - are cated by the senolars working in the field of linguistics, especially of Indo-Arvan languages. Dr. Colin P. Masica also citica these three publications m his monumental work. The Indo Aryan Languages, published by Cambridge University Press, UK, 1991. According to Masica. '. Bishnupinya Manipuri Language, language spoken in parts of Manipur, and in Cachar District (Assam), Fripura and Bangladesh (Sylnet) by early ninet enth century emigrants from Manipur related to but not a dialect of Benguli or Assamese, the ash once regarded as (Ling listic Sulvey of Lilia) Bengan Medici ereple, retains pre-Bengah features [Masica 1AL, pp 425] Di Sinha also published several books and uticles on grammar and linguistics in the Bishn ipriva Manipuri language for consumption of the interested readers in the speech community. This led the intelligentsia in the community to engage themselves in debates, discussion and brainstorming on the long tage issue. Holistically, work of Dr. Sinha on the Bishnupriva Man,puri language and linguistics have it stalled a strong and rigid podestal for the language to stand on Amilist legal rows, the community could establish its ethnic identity as Bishnupr va Manipuli main y based on his academic works.

During his life time Dr. Sinha had to run fr. in pular to post to get the dictionary published, but to no avail. At long last, he handed over a copy of the manuscript to me along with a letter authorizing me to publish it, if need be with nio lifection. I along with my friends, also made repeated attempts to garner's apport and resources for this august work. Finally, the Bishmaniva Manipuri Sahitya Sabha (BMSS) took the bold decision to publish the dictionary. I thank Mr. Manikanta Sinha, general secretary and Mr. Maningra Kumar Sinha, president of the BMSS for accomplishing the task well. The copy of the manuscript of the dictionary handed over to me was found to be incomplete in certain subjects of words. It was a struke of an a that Mr. Shyamanica Sinha, younger brother of Dr. K. P Sinha, had earlier versions of the manuscript left with him. Mr. Sinha was a constant and passionate worker with Dr. Sinha during the latter's productive or prime days. The two versions of the manuscript complemented each other and gave the dictionary its present shape. In the original manuscript the lexemes were encoded first in IAST, followed by the Bishnupriya Manipuri alphabet. We reversed the order to make the dictionary handy for the common people. The Herculean task of meticulous perusal, cross-checking the two versions of the manuscript, proof-reading etc., were done by Mr Shyamananda Sinha, single-handedly. Hats off to him for love and dedication for his mother tongue!

For Dr. K. P. Sinha the study on the Bishnupriya Manipuri language was somethings like sailing in uncharted waters as there was no scientific study of the language till then, barring some references and erroneous remarks. As the first exponent of linguistic study of the Bishnupriya Manipuri language Dr. Sinna's contribution is huge and profound Still, the development of the Bishnupriya Manipuri language was suffering for not having a comprehensive dictionary. That void is thus filled with this publication. The present generation of the Bishnupriya Manipuri Community and generations to come will be indebted to Dr. Kali Prasad Sinha - the great philosopher, linguist, lexicographer, poet lyncist and the essayist, all rolled into one. For generations, the Bishnupriya Manipuri speech community will be indebted to the Bishnupriya Manipuri Sabitya Sabha, its president and general secretary and Shyamananda Sinha for this priceless gift.

MESSAGES

The Bishnupriva Manipuri to English Dictionary, compiled by Dr. Kali Prasad Sinha, M. A., Ph. D., D. Litt. is the first comprehensive dictionary in the language. The work speaks volumes of his indomitable courage and determination. Prior to this work, Dr. Sinha had a proven record as a lexicographer when he published An Etymological Dictionary of Bishnupriva Manipuri in 1986. We, the members of the Bishnupriya Manipuri Sahitya Sabha, feel privileged to have got the opportunity to publish this dictionary.

Roth to Imago Devi and Aja Babaisena of West Kachudharam on the outskirts of Silchar in South Assam, a mentonous Kali Prasad Sinha had his Bachelor's (first class first) with Sanskrit honours from Gauhati University in 1961 and Master's in Sanskrit with specialization in Philosophy in 1963 from Jadavpur University (also tirst class, first), Calcutta His thesis - A study in the Bishnupriya Manipuri Language carried out by him under the guidance of Dr. K. P. Goswami - added yet another feather in the form of the Doctor of Philosophy degree in his cap in 1968. His quest for knowledge saw no bounds as though the sky was his limit. In 1982 Burdwan University conferred on him Doctor of Literature for his monumental work in Philosophy. Concept of Absolute in Indian Philosophy.

Dr Sinha authored over twenty books on Indian Philosophy written in different languages - Sanskrit, English, Assamese and Bengali. He has a number of Bishnupriva Manipuri publications as well. He started his career as a lecturer in Cachar College, Silchar with a stint spanning from 1963-1974. Later on, he joined Gauhati University in 1974, left it in 1989 as a Reader and joined Tripura University in 1989 as a Professor. In 1996 he joined Assam University where he was the Dean of Rabindranath Tagore School of Languages and Cultural Studies before his superannuction on February 28, 2903. He passed away on June 2, 2011.

When the identity of the Bishnupriya Manipur, and their mother timgue was at stake in 1994 due to a case in the Assam Other Backward Classes Commission at Gawahati, Dr. K. P. Sinha defended the case by submitting a statement along with one of his books - The Bishnupriya Manipuris - the "Language, Literature and Culture. The objectors did move the Hon'ble Gauhati High Court. The Hon'ble High Court also stopped short of adjudicating on the use of the term 'Manipuri' as prefix or suffix with the word 'Bishnupriya'. The legal wrangling came to an end in 2006 when the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India dissmissed the appeals of the objectors as withdrawn, paving the way for introduction of the Bishnupriya Manipuri language in primary schools in the Barak Valley districts of Assam Bishnupriya Manipuri language teachers were appointed in those schools later. As a mark of recognition to this epoch-making works, the Bishnupriya Manipuri Sahitya Sabha, Assam conferred on him the title "JATIR JANAK" on February 16, 2013.

This dictionary wil. pave the way for Bishnupriya Manipuri learners and writers in choosing right words, correct spelling, pronunciation, vocabulary, origin of words, synonyms and antonyms, and the words of the two dialects of BPM (Bishnupriya Manipuri) - Rajar Gang and Madai Gang - and many more possible.
